Mayor Johnson Visits Barrio Borikén's Small Businesses on Small Business Saturday

By Xiomara Rodríguez

This year, Paseo Boricua was a must-see for Small Business Saturday.

It started with a visit from Chicago's Mayor Brandon Johnson to the beloved local coffee shop, Café Colao, and ended with the 2nd Annual Paseo Boricua Flags of Steel Lighting.

Throughout the day there were a number of family-friendly events aimed at attracting foot traffic to support the small businesses on Paseo Boricua including the Annual Paseo Boricua Christmas Tree Lighting and the first-ever Bandera Holiday Market featuring Puerto Rican holiday vendors.

As a follow-up to 26th Ward Alderperson Jessie Fuentes's 26th Ward Business Summit on November 13th, Small Business Saturday was a reaffirmation that this community means business. In the past few months Paseo Boricua has seen the opening of three new Puerto Rican-owned businesses including Plena Mercancia at 2628 W Division St., Division Street Projects Gallery at 2716 W Division St., and Estu Photography at 2712-1 W. Division St. The 26th Ward as a whole is also celebrating the newly created Hermosa-Belmont Craigen Chamber of Commerce.

Throughout history, local/small businesses have been one of the primary ways to build generational wealth in communities of color. Small Business Saturday on Paseo Boricua celebrates this history and looks to the future of generational wealth on Paseo Boricua led by the next generation of Boricua entrepreneurs.

El Museo Nacional de Arte y Cultura Puertorriqueña Celebra con Exposición: Los Reyes Magos Puertorriqueños

By Alonso Vidal

El Museo Nacional Puertorriqueño celebra el Día de Reyes desde el 24 de noviembre hasta el 31 de enero del 2025, mediante una nueva exhibición que trae a Chicago la historia de los Santos de Palo, figuras de madera que representan a los Reyes Magos.

La tradición de los tres Reyes Magos se basa en los relatos cristianos del viaje que Melchor, Gaspar y Baltasar emprendieron para visitar a un recién nacido, Jesús, y dejarle regalos.

La fiesta tiene particular popularidad en países de habla hispana, donde cada seis de enero, las familias se juntan a esperar la llegada de los reyes.

En el caso de Puerto Rico, la tradición llegó junto a los españoles en el siglo XV, y aunque inicialmente fue una forma de asimilación por parte de los conquistadores hacia los taínos, pueblo aborigen puertorriqueño, terminó convirtiéndose en un símbolo único de la isla, contó Ignak Cruz Pérez, docente principal en el Museo Nacional Puertorriqueño.

“Como muchas cosas en Puerto Rico, nos gusta adaptar las tradiciones para que calcen a nuestra identidad,” dijo Cruz Pérez.

En Puerto Rico los Tres Reyes Magos viajan a caballo de Paso Fino, una raza originaria de la isla, en vez de camellos, como dicta la costumbre, y entre los reyes, el líder es Melchor.

Los Santos de Palo son esta representación puertorriqueña de los Reyes Magos. Estas figuras tradicionalmente están hechas por artesanos denominados santeros, para iglesias y hospitales en Puerto Rico.

Cruz Pérez resaltó que aunque este oficio es predominantemente liderado por hombres, esta exhibición también honra a las santeras, mostrando el trabajo de mujeres artistas puertorriqueñas.

Debido a que es difícil encontrar Santeros en Estados Unidos, la exhibición completa es traída desde Puerto Rico. Sin embargo, eso no impidió al museo incorporar artistas locales, contó Cruz Pérez.

Entre los pequeños Santos de Palo que adornan la sala del museo, resaltan el brillo de las joyas y los patrones coloridos de las vestimentas que traen puestas las figuras a escala de los Reyes

Santos de Palo

Magos; el responsable es Reynaldo Rodríguez.

Rodríguez es un artista local que ya lleva veintinueve años confeccionando ropa y haciendo arte. Aunque actualmente se encuentra dando talleres de costura para niños, donde les enseña a trabajar con materiales reciclados, decidió tomar el proyecto cuando recibió la llamada del museo.

“Me sentí muy feliz, porque es algo no solamente puertorriqueño y latino, sino que todo el mundo conoce,” dijo Rodríguez, cuyas piezas son exhibidas en el museo por segunda vez.

Rodríguez explicó que aprendió el arte de su madre, quien era costurera de trajes de novia en Puerto Rico. Ellos vivían en el campo, pero tenía que viajar a un pueblo cercano a comprar telas, llevaba a Rodríguez consigo. Él dijo que mientras su madre buscaba las telas, él veía los trajes y los dibujaba, sacando patrones.

Hoy, su misión es como artista es educar y compartir cultura a través del arte, en especial con la juventud, dijo Rodríguez.

Como Rodríguez, la exhibición de Santos de Palo del museo, le da la oportunidad a jóvenes de aprender acerca de la cultura puertorriqueña mediante el arte.

Mediante exhibiciones así, “revivimos las tradiciones,” dijo Cruz Pérez. Es una manera de conectar y crear un puente, agregó.

Humboldt Park Transitional Living Program for Housing Unstable LGBTQ+ Youth Hosts Thanksgiving Dinner

By Onix Nieves-Vanga

This Thanksgiving, the staff of the El Rescate Transitional Living Program community came together to celebrate the season of gratitude by hosting a heartwarming dinner for residents and those in need. The event aimed to provide a festive and nourishing meal for both El Rescate residents and local unhoused individuals, offering a moment of connection, warmth, and support.

The Thanksgiving dinner was a resounding success, filled with traditional holiday favorites served to residents. Additionally, meals were delivered directly to unhoused individuals in Humboldt Park and other areas. The event not only provided nourishment but also fostered a sense of belonging during a time when many face loneliness and uncertainty. “It’s not just about the food,” shared one attendee, “It’s about showing people that they matter and that we are here for them.”

In addition to feeding those in attendance a meal full of comfort food favorites such as turkey, stuffing, mashed potatoes, green beans, and apple pies, El Rescate extended its care into the broader community, bringing meals directly to those unable to join the celebration. This outreach ensured that even the unhoused in nearby areas felt the warmth and care of the holiday spirit.

Our community mourns the physical loss of Joxiel Antonio

Joxiel Antonio was the grandson of a beloved community member and vendor at ¡WEPA! Mercado del Pueblo, Cayita Suren. Joxiel was a cherished new member of the family and tragically passed away unexpectedly at only 5 months old. If you would like to help Joxiel’s family during these tragic times please donate to support their funeral expenses at: <https://gofund.me/ec37635e>

The event served as a reminder of the importance of compassion and connection, values El Rescate holds dear in its mission to support individuals facing housing instability and other challenges.

At El Rescate, the holiday season is about more than just meals—it’s about creating a strong, supportive community where everyone is treated with dignity and respect. The Thanksgiving dinner was just one of many ways the organization works to uplift and support individuals as they navigate life’s challenges.

This Thanksgiving, acts of kindness and outreach had a lasting impact, reminding us of the power of community. With full hearts and full plates, we look forward to continuing to serve and brighten the lives of those in need.

The El Rescate family extends our deepest thanks to everyone who made this Thanksgiving dinner a success, specifically the runaway hotline via the Chicago Cubs and Smoke Daddy restaurant for providing meals. We look forward to building a stronger, more connected community in the year ahead.
